Charges against Enron founder: Enron Corp. founder and former chairman Kenneth Lay said he is sorry for "causing so much commontion," but blamed the media for making matters worse, in an e-mail to his 1960 high school graduation class in Columbia, Mo.

Lay sent the message to a classmate Wednesday — a day before pleading innocent to charges of fraud, conspiracy and making false statements to banks.

Enron crashed in 2001, putting more than 5,000 employees out of work. Thousands of workers who heavily invested in Enron stock also lost their retirement savings.

"I apologize for causing so much commotion," Lay wrote to classmate Kay Baird. "It appears that the media continues to be interested in my welfare."

Mad cow rules: Consumer groups are upset the government is delaying rules intended to keep the infectious agent for mad cow from getting into the feed given to livestock

Industry groups say the Food and Drug Administration should take its time.

The agency said Friday it wanted to consider additional restrictions to feed proposals announced in January.

The proposals would strengthen a 1997 rule that says cattle feed cannot contain protein made from other cattle. The goal is to prevent aberrant proteins known as prions, which are blamed for the brain-wasting disease, from being transmitted through feed.

Worcester fire legal battle: A settlement has been announced in a legal battle over the payment of lawyers' fees from a trust fund established for the survivors of one of six Worcester, Mass, firefighters killed in a 1999 warehouse blaze.

The suit was filed three years ago by the three sons of Lt. Timothy P. Jackson Sr., after the Worcester Telegram & Gazette Charitable Foundation refused to disburse the Jackson family's share of more than $6.5 million in charitable donations raised for the survivors of the men killed.

Jackson was among the six firefighters who died in the fire that began Dec. 3, 1999, at the Worcester Cold Storage and Warehouse Co. building.

Iraq war intelligence: Prime Minister Tony Blair's claim before the Iraq war that Saddam Hussein could rapidly launch chemical or biological attacks has been criticized by two former intelligence agents in an interview in London, to be broadcast Sunday. John Morrison, the former deputy chief of the Defense Intelligence Staff, told the British Broadcasting Corp. TV program "Panorama" that he could "almost hear the collective raspberry going up around Whitehall," when Blair told lawmakers that the threat from Iraq was serious and current.

Korean families reunion: North Korean Yun Byung Chul, 80, right, touches the cheek of his South Korean daughter Yun Sun-won, 58, as they share smiles during the 10th reunion meeting on the Diamond Mountain in North Korea on Sunday. Yun Sun-won was among 471 South Koreans who visited North Korea to reunite their relatives for the first time in more than half a century.

A statement that Iraq could launch attacks on notice of just 45 minutes was made four times in an intelligence dossier published by Blair's government in September 2002, as it built its case for war in Iraq.

Serbia peacekeeping mission: NATO-led peacekeepers have released six ethnic Albanians detained after a gunman slightly wounded four Finnish soldiers in Serbia-Montenegro, an official said Sunday.

The peacekeepers sustained shotgun pellet wounds to their arms and legs from a shot fired late Saturday as they were patrolling near the town of Lipljan, some 20 miles south of the province's capital. Pristina.

Six people detained at the scene were released after they were questioned, said Capt. Thomas Magnusson, a spokesman for the peacekeepers in central Kosovo. The gunman remained at large and the investigation was ongoing.

Congo fighting: Congo soldiers clashed with a band of Congo-based Rwandan rebels near the Rwanda border, killing 10 of the insurgents, a Congolese officer said Sunday.

The fighting happened Saturday at Rubare, 30 miles north of the Congo city of Goma, an officer in the region said, speaking on condition of anonymity. Three Congolese soldiers were injured, he said.

There was no immediate confirmation from the U.N. mission in Congo, which has 10,800 troops deployed in the central African country.

Pro-democracy president in Serbia: Serbia's first pro-democracy president since World War II took office Sunday, vowing to bring stability to the Balkan republic and push it closer to the European Union and MATO.

Boris Tadic, 46, leader of opposition Democratic Party, was elected in a June 27 runoff, defeating a hard-line nationalist ally of former President Slobodan Milosevic.

Although the office is mostly ceremonial, Tadic's election was seen as a signal of Serbs' desires to more closely align with the EU and NATO and to move away from the nationalist isolation of Milosevic's autocratic legacy.

Olympic security: Frustrated by delays, the Greek government has postponed payment on a multimillion-dollar security system being built by an American-led consortium for the Summer Olympics, according to media reports.

The final installment of $173 million has been put on hold due to government concerns about whether the security system will be ready for the Aug. 13 opening of the games in Athens, the daily To Vima reported Saturday.

The consortium, led by the San Diego-based Science Applications International Corp., or SAIC, is responsible for installing thousands of infrared and high-resolution cameras around the capital and Olympic venues, as well as a secure communication and information and radio system for security services.

Germany nail bombing: German authorities said Saturday that they released a suspect in a nail bombing last month in a Cologne street that injured 22 people, citing a lack of evidence to connect him to the crime.

The man, a 23-year-old German who once lived in Cologne, was arrested Friday morning in western Germany on a tip.

The man's alibi put him away from the scene of the crime, and there is nothing now to link him to the scene, police spokesman Wolfgang Beus said Saturday.

Police have said the bomb — a gas canister filled with gunpowder and nails — was likely in a backpack strapped to a bicycle left in front of the two buildings in a Turkish immigrant neighborhood.

Al-Zarqawi claims deadly Samarra attacks

The Associated Press

BAGHDAD - A militant group linked to Jordanian terror suspect Abu Musab al-Zarqawi claimed responsibility Sunday for a recent attack on a military headquarters in Samarra that killed five U.S. soldiers and one Iraqi National Guardsman The claim by al-Zarqawi's Tawhid and Jihad movement which was nosted on a Web site known for being a clearinghouse for such statements, claimed that dozens of Americans and hundreds of Iraqis died in Thursday's assault. The U.S. military has said insurgents detonated a car bomb and then fired mortars at the building used jointly by the 1st Infantry Division and Iraqi guardsmen.

"One of the lions of the martyrs' brigade, entered the building and destroyed it completely, plus six Hummers, including those who were inside them, thank God," the al-Zargawi group said in its statement.

As soldiers tried to escape from the building, "the soldiers of God were waiting for them and rained those who came with mor-tar shells," the statement said.

The accuracy of the group's account could not be verified

The five 1st ID soldiers killed in the attack have not been identified.

Also Sunday, a roadside bomb targeting a U.S. patrol near the city of Samarra killed two U.S. soldiers and wounded three others, the military said in a statement

The soldiers, from the 1st ID, were wounded when an improvised explosive device blew up near their convoy about 4:30 p.m., the statement said

A coordinated roadside bomb attack on a U.S. convoy in northern Iraq on Sunday killed a U.S. soldier and an Iraqi civilian, the military said.

The attack, in which one soldier also was wounded, began Sunday in Beiji about 90 miles south of the northern city of Mosul when a bomb exploded at the side of the road, the military said in a statement. A vehicle then raced toward the patrol and fired on the soldiers, who returned fire, killing the driver, the military said.

On Saturday, four U.S. Marines died in a vehicle accident while conducting security operations in an area of western Iraq, the U.S. command said Sunday.

The Marines died in Anhar a Sunni-dominated area west of the Iraqi capital that includes Ramadi, Fallujah and Qaim on the Syrian border. They were assigned to the 1st Marine Expeditionary Force

On the same day, U.S. Marines clashed with guerrillas taking cover at a taxi stand in a stronghold of support for Saddam's ousted regime, killing three people and wounding five, military and hospital offi-

Insurgents clad in black attacked the Marines in the city of Ramadi, a hotbed of anti-coalition sentiment. U.S. forces returned fire, blasting the stand into a twisted pile of molten metal. Blood pooled on the asphalt. At least one child was wounded in the crossfire.

Also Saturday, masked attackers gunned down Sunni cleric Abdul-Majeed al-Jina'e and his driver near a mosque in the southern city of Basra, police 1st Lt. Ahmed Abdul-Hameed said. The bodies were discovered Sunday.

In Baqouba, north of Baghdad, about 100 protesters marched through the shopping district Sunday chanting pro-Saddam slo gans, waving rifles and carrying posters of the former leader.

Also in Baqouba, insurgents detonated two roadside bombs Saturday as a U.S. patrols passed. Two soldiers and one civilian were wounded in the two incidents. All were evacuated to a combat hospital said Mai. Neal O'Brien, the spokesman for the 1st Infantry Division.

Meanwhile, the fate of captured Filipino worker Angelo dela Cruz remained unclear. His captors demanded that the Philippine government withdraw its 51-member force from Iraq by Saturday or dela Cruz would be beheaded. Another 4,100 Filipinos work as key contractors on U.S. bases

The Philippines foreign secretary said Sunday the country will not withdraw its troops from Iraq sooner than their scheduled Aug. 20 departure as demanded by militants threatening to behead dela Cruz.

Officials in the Philippines said Saturday that dela Cruz was about to be freed. But a dinlomat familiar with the talks in Raghdad remained cautious, and the Al-Jazeera television station, which broadcast the original tape showing dela Cruz surrounded by armed men, said it received a statement Saturday night from the group denying he had been freed and calling him a "prisoner of war." "We continue to do everything we can in order to secure the release of Angelo dela Cruz," Foreign Secretary Delia Albert said Sunday.

In the statement, the group calling itself the Iraqi Islamic Army-Khaled bin Al-Waleed Corps gave the Philippines an extension until Sunday night, according to Al-Jazeera

Meanwhile, Bulgaria expressed hope that two Bulgarian truck drivers also kidnapped by militants were still alive.

Al-Zarqawi's group threatened to kill the men if the United States did not release all Iraqi detainees - an ultimatum that has expired.

Bulgarian Foreign Minister Solomon Pasi suggested Saturday that the men were still alive, though he warned the informa-tion was "unconfirmed."

Sabotage of Iraqi oil, power may be inside job

An Iraqi security officer guards the area around an oil pipeline fire at Al-Mishahdah, Iraq on June 22 after an overnight explosion.

The Associated Press

BAGHDAD - Saboteurs launching attacks on Iraq's oil and electricity infrastructure appear to be employees working in the industry or others acting on inside information, reconstruction officials said Sunday.

A Western diplomat in Baghdad said the "precise" targeting of especially vulnerable or valuable portions of the oil and electricity systems - and even a sewage treatment plant - has increased the damage to critical infrastructure beyond what would be expected from random attacks.

The diplomat declined to reveal the sections that had been sabotaged.

Interim Prime Minister Ivad Allawi has blamed such attacks for a nationwide loss of power of more than four hours a day. Irag's pipelines transport crude oil for export and also carry it to oil-fired power generators that provide domestic electricity

Allawi said saboteurs have attacked vital oil pipelines 130 times in the last seven months. causing hundreds of millions of dollars in damage and lost revenues, hindering Iraq's efforts to rebuild and adding to the hardships of average Iragis

The Western diplomat said insurgents were suspected of using blackmail and threats to coerce Iraqi workers to launch attacks or to provide information on vulnerable locations in the country's oil pipelines and electric power

Funding and information for the sabotage

also may be flowing into Iraq from other countries, the diplomat said. Oil Minister Thamer al-Ghadban told Dow

Jones Newswires on Sunday that his ministry will extend for "a few months" a contract with South African security contractor Erinys International that was set to expire in less than a

Al-Ghadban said he would also expand the 14,000-member Iraqi force created to protect the infrastructure.

Steve Wright, a spokesman for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, said sabotage of key infrastructure appears to have been planned before the U.S.-led invasion last year by members of Saddam Hussein's government. In some cases, Iraqi oil wells were wired to be set on fire

In the months after the invasion, saboteurs suspected of being insiders - set fire to a computerized control room for a liquid propane gas plant as well as the plant's warehouse, damaging millions of dollars in equipment, he said. Elsewhere, a water treatment plant used in Iraq's oil industry was sabotaged. Wright said.

Even a repaired sewage treatment plant was sabotaged - probably by insiders, the Western diplomat said.

Now, Iraqis hired by the Army Corps of Engineers to work in Iraq's oil and electric infrastructure have to go through background checks overseen by the new U.S. Embassy,

Troops with brain injuries exercise their minds

Army hospital studies injury effects

BY LARRY MARGASAK The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Brain injury specialists at the Army's premier medical center have taught Spc Jamie Brown how to exercise his mind and get it working again.

He is learning to recall the last thing he read and remember the next place he is going, just as he learned to be a cook and college student in civilian life - and a forward artillery observer for the Indiana National Guard. Brown, 22, knows progress can be slow after a grenade explodes in your tent and the blast sends you hurtling into a metal pole.

The Associated Press interviewed Brown and two of his doctors at Walter Reed Army Medi-Center in Washington to see how the military

Brown came to U.S. brain injury network Walter Reed in a medicated stupor in early December. At the combat hospital in Iraq where he was first treated, he learned that he had lost a kidney, his adrenal gland and spleen. His pancreas was damaged. Shrappel in his stomach caused stabbing pain.

And his brain was damaged. Brown became a patient in the Defense and Veterans Brain Injury Center at Walter Reed. It is one of eight brain injury facilities run jointly by the departments of

On Thursday, two people were killed and three others wounded in a Tripoli gundary members of the Hassoun battle between members of the Hassoun clan and business rivals who taunted them as being American collaborators.

The Hassoun clan, estimated at about 4.000 people, lives mostly in Tripoli and Dinnivah, northern areas where anti-American fundamentalist Sunni Muslim groups are dominant.

Hassoun, who joined the Marines in 2001, vanished June 20 from his base near the troubled Iraqi city of Fallujah where he had been working as an Arabic translator.

A week later, he appeared in a videotape aired on Arab television that showed him being held hostage by militants. His eyes were blindfolded with a white cloth, and a sword was hanging over his head. Days later, there were conflicting re-orts about his fate — first that he was beheaded, then that he was alive. He showed up Thursday at the U.S. Embassy in Beirut, but it was unclear how he reached Lebanon and contacted American officials.

The Navy is investigating whether the en-tire kidnapping might have been a hoax.

idea in his head and he couldn't let it go. There would be one part of a story he would keep repeating. He couldn't remember other parts," the doctor said.

Someone with major brain trauma often loses confidence, said Dr. Deborah Warden, who is based at Walter Reed and is national director of the government's brain injury network

She has seen brain-injured soldiers wait until the mess hall was about to close before arriving for meals, just to avoid crowds, the cacophony of many conversations and the sudden sound of a

They were like yesteryear teens, fainting for the Beatles. The stars they waited for, though, were much dearer: After 15 months of serving in Iraq, about 130 soldiers from the 1st Armored Division's 16th Engineer Battalion arrived home in Giessen on Sunday.

Many had been home on leave during the war, but their deployment had also been extended three extra months beyond the expected year. That made it made a long wait for everyone.

It was a long, long, wait for Tina Banister.

The 1st Infantry Division-led Task Force Danger announced plans this week to coordinate a partnership between Harvard University and the Tikrit University Medical School in Iraq.

Capt. Thamus J. Morgan said in a task force news release that Har-vard will help to prepare a five-year plan for the Tikrit medical school based upon a 200-page report that will be prepared by the Iraqi faculty and administrators.

Morgan is a veterinarian on the Harvard faculty who is currently serving with the task force's 415th Civil Affairs Battalion, a Reserve unit from Kalamazoo, Mich.

Two units from the 1st Armored Division arrived safely at Camp Arifjan, Kuwait, on Saturday night after a convoy south from Baghdad. About 130 soldiers from 1st Brigade Headquarters Company and the 501st Forward Support Battalion, which are both based in Friedberg, Germany, made the trip as part of the 1st AD's return to Germany from Iraq after a 15-month tour. The two-day convoy featured 35 vehicles and covered nearly 500 miles, including one four-hour stretch of unpaved road between Baghdad and the Kuwait border.

U.S. to build Afghan women a center to learn business skills

Stare and Strings

U.S. soldiers on the Provincial Reconstruction Team in Afghanistan's Konar province are helping build a women's center where women will be able to gather and learn skills to support their families.

Many will be learning to sew clothes, weave rugs or make beaded jewelry so they can sell products at local bazaars. Others who already know these crafts will be getting business training and the initial financial support they need to get started.

According to U.S. military officials, 25 years of fighting and turmoil in Konar has left far more women than men — many of whom are disabled - in the province, requiring women to take on a larger economic role.

"If we could just provide them with the initial materials they need or with a loan to pur-chase these materials, they would be able to start turning around a profit," said Lt. Col. Jennifer Caruso, Combined Joint Task Force-76 Equal Opportunity program manager.

Caruso leads a group of female soldiers who are evaluating women's roles throughout Afghanistan and looking for ways the coalition can help expand them.

A local contractor has drafted plans for the center, which will be built on the grounds of a girls school, and work can begin within two weeks after the project is approved.

Mna, a young girl from Konar Province, weaves a rug at the nen's shura building in Asada bad. Similar skills, as well as business skills, will be taught at the new center so women will be able to take a larger role in developing the local economy and supporting their families.

Bird bonanza

Commissary cashier owns about 300 feathered friends

BY JASON CHUDY Stars and Stripes

Randy Berry's house is definitely for the birds.

There are baby birds in the bedroom, juvenile birds in a closet and big birds in the living room. Don't even think about playing basketball on his childhood court;

there are bird cages over the entire surface

Berry, the son of a retired sailor, cares for about 300 birds, ranging in size from the 3-foot-long blue-throated macaw to fist-sized finches at his Pinetamare, Italy, home.

What started out as a teenage hobby became an adult obsession that has made him one of Italy's best-known exotic bird keepers and has garnered international recognition.

yard of the home he shares with his brother, William. Dozens of birds squawked, chirped, and screeched all around him.

Berry, who was born in Italy and decided to remain there, says that his brother was the first in the family to get a pet bird - a parrot from a friend's mother - when he was a teen. The brothers soon realized that caring for exotic hirds drew another species to their home: girls.

base employee. They've even stitched together the chest of a friend's macaw that had gotten loose and hurt itself.

Macaws are Berry's favorite birds, "probably because they're the biggest and the most difficult to get," he said. The paperwork alone for his

about the bird's lineage, which cuts down on in-breeding, and lets officials know that the bird wasn't taken from the wild.

Barry's bird knowledge and ears of experience have made him a recognized name in Italian parrot circles. In 1999, he attended an invitation-only conference at Loro Parque Fundacion in the Canary Islands, which is home to the world's largest captive parrot collection. The foundation is a non-profit international organization that, according to its Web site, works to conserve parrots

Berry is trying to open an exotic bird park. Southern Italy, he said, has a good climate for the hirds

One problem is that he needs land for the park, but it can't be too out of the way. "I don't want to he afraid to leave them alone " he said of his birds, some of which are worth thousands of dollars.

Until he creates his park, Berry is content showing off his birds to friends, or taking them to the base middle and high schools.

"I did a show at career day," he said, "and ... went to the biology classroom when they were study ing birds.

New paint system speeds B-2s back to air

BY PETER PAE Los Angeles Times

The B-2 stealth bomber, with its boomerang shape and rubber-like skin, is a marvel of high-tech engineering, capable of sneaking undetected across hostile territories

And the special coating that makes the $2.1 billion aircraft nearly invisible to radar is a big maintenance headache: It takes technicians days to gingerly reapply the coating each time a body panel is removed to allow access to the iet's innards.

"It's not like painting a house," said Ronald Sugar, chairman and chief executive of the B-2's manufacturer, Northrop Grumman

Hoping to speed things up, Northrop has come up with a new formula and an automated application system that could significantly slash the amount of time the aircraft is unavailable for flight

In some cases, the new coating may allow repairs to be completed "in minutes instead of days," said Duke Dufresne, the Northrop vice president who heads the B-2 program.

Neither Northrop nor the Air Force will say it, but aerospace industry analysts think the new coating also increases the ability of the B-2 to escape detection by

AIR FORCE STAFF SGT. CHERIE A. THURLBY/KRT

A B-2 Spirit heads to an undisclosed location after flying a mission over Iraq in March 2003. The bomber's manufacturer, Northrup Grumman Corp., has designed a new way to reapply the plane's radar-deflecting coating that allows the B-2 to return to service much faster than it did under the previous painting procedure.

Although it has been praised for its stealth capabilities, the bomber also has been maligned for the extensive maintenance it

"It's been hard to keep them flying," said Christopher Bolkcom, a military aircraft analyst for the Congressional Research Service.

A B-2, according to an Air Force report in 2001, spent about 70 hours on the ground undergoing maintenance for each hour in the air.

And in some years, only about appy the plane's radar-deflecting to service much faster than it did re.

40 percent of the B-2 fleet was ready to fly a mission at any given time.

The Pentagon spends $300 million to $400 million a year upgrading, maintaining and overhauling B-2s, with most of the work done at Northrop's plant in Palmdale, Calif., where about 1,100 people work on the program.

Although it's costly to maintain, there's nothing else in the world like the stealth bomber. With its radar-evading features, it's likely to spearhead the attack in what the Air Force calls "suppression of enemy air defenses."

At the outset of the war in Iraq last year, the B-2 was one of the first aircraft to drop bombs, destroying radar installations and defense systems.

This cleared the way for other bombers and fighter jets to begin attacking Iraqi military forces and facilities and racumes.

The stealth capability is derived from the way the aircraft is shaped — basically a flying wing lacking conventional fuselage and tall — and by the smooth skin that covers any gaps that could reflect radar waves. The skin has a rubber-like feel and electromagnetic properties. Exactly what it's made of or how it works is top secret.

Unlike the jagged shape of the F-117 setalh fighter, which de-flects radar waves in various directions, the B-2's coating actually absorbs the waves. Analysts believe that with the coating, the B-2 appears on the radar screen as an object the size of a tennis ball rather than an aircraft with a wingspan similar to that of a 747 jumbo jet.

But that coating must be stripped off each time maintenance or repair is performed, then reapplied and allowed to cure before the aircraft can be returned to service. About 3,000 feet of tape is used to fill any gans

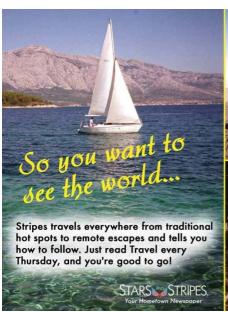

Northrop engineers and chemists came up with the formula for the new coating after nearly a decade of research. It is called "alternate high-frequency material" and is applied by robotic paint sprayers. With the new paint and automated spraying process, technicians no longer need to deal with the coating or the tape. B-2 maintenance personnel are able to pop open a panel, repair wiring or electronic components, then screw the panel back on — the standard procedure for most air-

The Air Force believes that the new coating eventually will increase the B-2 fleet's so-called mission-capable rate from about 40 percent to as high as 60 per-

In the past, about half of major maintenance time was spent stripping off the special coating and then reapplying a new coat. Now, once all the preparation work is complete, four robotic arms, resembling large dental probes, can spray around the clock for 12 days, stopping only for a layer to

The first bomber with the new coating, the Spirit of Washington, is expected to go back into service later this summer at Whitman Air Force Base in Missouri, where all the stealth bombers are HAN PLIESAK, Bosnia-Herzegovina — In mountains scattered with sawmills and war bones. Zoran Mikevic paints murals of martyrs and saints in the cod half-light of a church. He is retined this land a decade ago. But when pressed, he hops off his scaffolding and defifes Bosnia's most notorious war crimes fugitive.

"Radovan Karadzic led his people through a difficult time," said hikevic, his voice softly echoing through the Serbian Orthodox Church here. "All the saints I'm painting on these walls are martrys. Karadzic is a martyr, too. He's a Serb. He's one of my own, and there's something in me that loves the underdog."

Accused by international autorities of ornchestrating the 1995 massacre of about 7,500 Muslim men and boys in the Bosnian town of Srebrenica, Karadzic has been eluding thousands of NATO troops and jeopardizing the credibility of the international community. He is believed to be travellative through backwater villages and pine forests, and bankvolled by a secret networt of supporters.

Karadzic's wartime leadership remains revered in this rugged terrain, but passion for the bushy-haired poet turned charismatic nationalist has become muted over the years as many Bosnian Serbs blame him for their economic and political turnoil. Time and poverty have diminished Serbian dreams of ethnic purity, And Karadzie—much like former Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic — is viewed by many as an unwanted relic from a painful era.

"I have no time for Radovan Karadzic. I have my own problems," said Sofija Mirkovic, more scant in her praise than Mikevic as she sai in the shadow of the church. "My husband died of lung cancer. I live on $45 a month pension. I'm 65 years old and have to cut my own wood for winter."

A man who gave his name only as Bozidar offered blunt advice: "If I were Karadzic, I'd turn myself in to the war crimes tribunal in The Hague just to stop the suffering of my people. Serbs would respect him even more if he did that. People don't condemn Karadzic, but they don't like him so much anymore."

Such sentiments would have rarely been whispered — if held at all — just a few years ago. The change in mood, Western officials say, increases the possibility that Karadzic's protective cloak may splinter.

Lawyers seek more privacy for woman in case of girls' murders

he Associated Press

LONDON — Lawyers for a woman who was convicted of obstructing justice in a sensational child murder case said Saturday they had succeeded in tightening an injunction banning publication of her new identity and whereabouts.

Maxine Carr, 27, was released from prison in May after serving 21 months in prison for lying to protect her former boyfriend Ian Huntley, who killed two 10-year-old girls at his home in the village of Soham in eastern England in August 2002.

Although Carr was not convicted of complicity in the killings, she became a hated figure to many in Britain and some threatened revenge upon her release. Her lawyers at the firm Devas Lewis James had won a strict court order before her release banning publication of any new name for her, information on her care or treatment or any "depiction, painting, drawing, photograph or film" of her. The order also barred journalists from soliciting any information about her

However, Devas Lewis James instigated an urgent hearing before a High Court judge Saturday after the Daily Mail newspaper published details about Carr's new life, including references to her accommodation and employment.

The law firm said that Justice John Mitting extended the injunction protecting Carr to cover any description of the accommodation or nature of the premises in which she lives and the nature of her employment.

BY HOPE YEN The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Working in secret, the Sept. 11 commission is finishing a final report that several members believe will be done by week's end and have unanimous support.

The endorsement of all 10 commissioners is important if the findings and recommendations for improvements - most notably in intelligence-gathering — are to avoid charges of partisanship in a presidential election year.

'They are all taking their broader responsibility seriously," said Norm Ornstein, a political analyst at the American Enterprise Institute. "They know this is not about scoring political points in the heart of a campaign but about making sure the attacks don't happen again."

A report without any dissenters would be an accomplishment given the charges of partisanship that surfaced during public hearings featuring officials such as national security adviser Condoleezza Rice, Attorney General John Ashcroft and former counterterrorism chief Richard Clarke.

WEEHAWKEN, N.J. - The bitter grudge between their ancestors has long faded, but on Sunday descendants of Alex-ander Hamilton and Aaron Burr marked their paces with pistols in hand.

Antonio Burr, a descendant of Burr's cousin, arrived by rowboat in period costume and fired a replica of the .54-caliber

Douglas Hamilton, a fifth-great-grandson Hamilton, feigned the historic hip wound, dropping to one knee and then fall ing to the ground in a sitting position.

California education secretary in hot water over remark to 6-year-old

By MICHAEL R BLOOD The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - State Education Secre tary Richard Riordan jokingly told a child her name, Isis, meant "stupid dirty girl," prompt-ing widespread criticism and posing a quandafor the man who appointed him, Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger.

Riordan, the wealthy former Los Angeles mayor known for his support of public schools, startled even friends last week with the comments at a promotional event for sum-mer reading at the Santa Barbara library.

Schwarzenegger, his longtime friend, called Riordan's statement to the girl "unacceptable in any context" but gave no hint his job was in

But Alice Huffman, president of the California chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said Thurs day that Riordan "is not suitable to lead educa-tion in our state" and should be removed.

Riordan replied, "It means stupid, dirty

After nervous laughter in the room, the girl again told Riordan the meaning of her name.

"Hey, that's nifty," he said. A day later, Riordan issued a statement that said he "teased" the girl. "I immediately apolo-

ARTHUR, Neb. - With a well-trimmed mustache, crisp white shirt and worn leather chaps over jeans, Tim Schaack is easily pegged as a cowboy

"I feel I can get so much more from the horse the more ... I understand about how his inner feelings are and how his mind works," said Schaack, Haythorn's horse trainer, who sees some 900 horses throughout the year.

First brought to the attention of the American public with the 1998 Hollywood film "The Horse Whisperer," this gentle form of horse training rooted in the West has slowly become the standard.

Over the last decade, it has grown to influence just about every discipline of horse training,

Tim Schaack tries to gain the trust of a young colt at the Haythorn Ranch near Arthur, Neb. At the Haythorn Ranch, it is clear that the popular image of the Western horseman is due for revisions. A gentle form of horse training rooted in the West has slowly become the standard including the toney world of English-style riding and the subtle precision of show horses.

"There are a lot of different people out there that all teach the basic thing, which is that you want the horse to want to do what you're asking it to," said Erin Petersen, equine lecturer at the University of Maryland.

"So you're using the horse's own natural communication, which is through body language, to actually train the horse

Horses that are trained using non-forceful techniques, known generally as natural horsemanship, tend to be more responsive to and respectful of their riders, Petersen said. Though various forms of natural horsemanship date back more than 2000 years to the writings of the Greek philosopher and cavalryman Xenophon, the man usual-ly credited with bringing this type of horse training to the United States is Tom Dorrance, who died last year.

Today, the elder statesman of natural horsemanship is Ray Hunt, who learned the technique 40 years ago from Dorrance and his brother. Bill.

Hunt, who is based in Idaho, rains riders throughout the world to feel out the needs and abilities of the horse while teaching it such skills as taking its first ride, or learning to turn. Being too forceful with a horse will only scare it into trying to protect itself, he said.

Schaack began learning his training technique about 10 years ago through reading articles and riding with trainers he admired, including Hunt.

Building a feeling of trust and friendship between the rider and the animal is crucial. Schaack said

"A horse that trusts the rider and understands that and really believes that the rider isn't going to put him in any danger - it's about impossible to scare one of those horses," he said.

"USAREUR RAPID TOOL PROGRAM"

Since the summer of 2001, Snap-On Tools Government Business Unit has fielded tool trucks to sell and replace tools on Army installations throughout USAREUR. Trucks carry 300 NSN's of the most demanded tools, visiting units twice a month. Warranted items are replaced at once and new items can be bought by IMPAC card or cash payments as well as through the local Contracting Offices. Items out of stock from TOP 300 at the time of visit will be shinned within 48 hours at no additional cost

In defense of military widows

There exists an injustice toward our mili tary widows that this great country of ours has let continue for God knows how long, and it is now time to correct what is an in sult to those whose husbands have served, fought and died for the freedoms we pos Sess

In time, after her husband passes away, many widows, some with children, rema ry and are not aware that if they marry a nonmilitary man they will lose benefits that are rightfully theirs, benefits received from their previous husband's military service. Admission to military bases for pharmaceutical supplies, purchases at the commissaries, post and base exchanges along with the privilege, at little or no cost, o being buried in a military cemetery will no longer be available to them.

Is this truly "the American way"? No, it is not. Military widows should not be treated in this manner. Many of them followed their husbands from base to base and endured the hardships along the way. A military man can marry, lose his wife through divorce or death, and in each future marriage his wife has all benefits available. It is time for a change.

Bush followed ground rules

In response to "What is evil?" (June 29): The writer opined that President Bush is just as evil as Saddam Hussein, Adolf Hit-ler, Josef Stalin, etc., and "Support what is right" (June 29), whose writer commented that Bush was not chosen by the American people.

The writer of "Support what is right" said that it was "only" the Electoral Col-lege that voted for Bush, but the popular vote belonged to Al Gore. And so it is im plied that Bush was not truly elected, not truly chosen by the American people.

Voting procedures, including the estab lishment of the Electoral College, are clearly detailed in Article II of the Constitution. This is the method by which Americans have chosen presidents since 1783.

The writer also said: "Bush's Cabinet members, who are making military deci-sions, are not elected, but appointed by the president.

That is part of what the presidency en-tails, ever since 1783. Article II states that public ministers, judges, consuls, ambassadors and Supreme Court justices are ap pointed "with the advice and consent of the Senate" by the president. Yet another check and balance to prevent one person from obtaining too much power. And even though the president appoints judges, the judicial branch does not always agree with the administration when making decisions. This is the case concerning how the Bush administration is detaining terrorism suspects indefinitely. A truly evil leader would send thugs into the court and have all the judges who disagree with his policies killed on the spot.

The writer of "What is evil" stated that Bush was an evil leader, like Hitler, because he launched a hostile invasion and occupation of another nation. Although the president, as commander in chief, has a variety of war powers. Congress provides the check and balance. The legislative branch voted on the budget that paid for this war, as with funding for all military operations. That way, the president cannot simply wake up and decide to go to war. This has been the case ever since 1783.

President Clinton sent us into Kosovo. Somalia, Haiti and Rwanda. Were we provoked? No, we went to those nations to establish justice, to promote general wel-fare. We acted upon what we believe, just as one letter writer suggested. Somehow we knew that genocide is an evil thing, and that we, having the power to act, should, Somehow we concluded that supporting Haiti's transition to democratic government was good

When Congress refused to authorize the use of force, Clinton argued that as commander in chief he had constitutional evecutive power to send in troops, occupy nations and change regimes, even when we were unprovoked. I wonder if the writer of "What is evil?" thought that was a great evil unparalleled since Stalin or Kim Il Sung. I wonder if the writer is relieved now that we have transferred power to the Iraqis. If not, I wonder if he is as concerned about our continued presence in Kosovo as he is about our "hostile invasion" of Iraq.

I wonder if he has checked history to see how many governments have occupied nations and then returned sovereignty to the people of those nations.

I wonder if he has considered the difference between how the United States handled the invasion and occupation of Nazi Germany as opposed to the response by the Soviet Union under Stalin

East Germany spent more than 40 years under communist rule. West Germany was given full sovereignty after 10 years. Irag spent less than a year and a half under U.S. administration. Is that evil leadership at work?

Finally, I wonder if the writer of "What is evil?" would, in the course of his goal to see a new president elected, practice that same consideration toward our current president

Don't sell young GIs short

In response to "Balanced news needed" (June 29), I was outraged to have someone living in Sacramento, Calif., say that he doesn't "blame young soldiers for their distorted views of politics back home." Based upon his letter, he obviously doesn't know the young soldiers of today.

Like the letter writer, I am a veteran. I am now "serving" as a Navy spouse living in Japan. My husband is forward deployed and our family sacrifices daily.

Additionally, I am the daughter of a Ma-rine (always a Marine and he served for 30 years) and the sister of an active-duty Ma-rine. Living overseas, I depend upon Amer-ican Forces Network radio for my news. I have military friends all over the world and family in Iraq. To say that my friends and family have a distorted view of politics back home is insulting.

In a further reach the letter writer asserts that Rush Limbaugh is the cause of our "distorted views." As an AFN listener, I assure the letter writer that we receive plenty of media bias from the left. Although Limbaugh is broadcast here, it is only from 5 a.m. until 6 a.m. — not exactly 'prime time" on our radio. The rest of the day includes a multitude of music and news programs. I assure the letter writer we hear more of National Public Radio than of Rush. On the hour, there is a brief news update from AP Network News or CBS Radio or some other left-of-center broadcasting corporation. I do not belittle the service of the letter writer, but I wonder what perspective he has on today's servicemembers. To write that our views are distorted shows that he has no respect for today's military.

AFN does a good job giving us a wide choice of programming. We, as individuals, can listen or not listen as we choose. I cannot help but think that he has some further political agenda to use and belittle soldiers in an attempt to attack a conservative talk-show host. J.P. Creed

Uneasy feeling is back

I grew up in the 1960s and '70s. Every evening while our family ate supper to-gether, we would watch and listen to the daily news about Vietnam. Years later, after the war ended and I was an adult with some perspective on it, the recurring thought I had was "so many lives sacri-ficed and for what?" It wasn't like the previous world wars when so much was at stake here and abroad

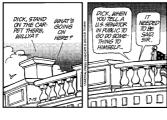

Now we are in Irag, and again I watch the news reports of the casualties of that conflict. I am angry to know that again American lives are being sacrificed. Only the future will reveal if it was worth it. But I am writing to say God bless you - to the servicemen and women who are putting their lives on the line, and their families.

I thank them for their willingness to do it. I mourn for each life that is lost and pray for the safe return of all the rest. They are my heroes.

ny, the long-awaited sight of Lay surrendering in handcuffs to authorities in Houston had to be richly satisfying. To boot, the Securities and Exchange Commission also came in [Thursday] with civil charges against Lay.

As to the fraud charges against him, Lay's guilt or innocence will be determined in court, after what doubtless will be exceedingly lengthy and costly litigation involving highly technical matters. But if, as promised, Lay's defense is that he simply didn't know anything about the gross financial misdeeds transpiring in the bowels of Enron, that seems patently preposterous at the outset.

Here is a trained economist who took a minor-league gas pipeline company, navigated it through the uncharted world of energy deregulation and, in the process, transformed it into a global trading colosist, a savry political player whose mountain of donations to the Bush campaign earned him enormous friendship and authority in the current White House; and a corporate leader who, despite internal warnings that Enron's shell game was unraveling, kept on urging his employees and others to buy its stock — all the while continuing to sell his. And Lay didn't know? Given the pervasiveness of the alged corruption at Enron, that's real know? sems of the 1990s stock market boom — which seems so distant now, doesn't it? — Lay was not shy about enjoying an opulent lifestyle. He had the homes, the jets, the contacts and, at one time, $400 million. With the company's rapid fall in late 2001 — its stock plummeted from more than $80 a share to next to nothing in less than a year — he became a powerful cultural symbol of ill-gotten gains. But whatever happens now, Lay's legacy will have less to do with greed than with the necessity for greater corporate accountability.

Of course, Enron unfortunately was just the first mammoth corporate scandal in a shock wave of frauds and bankrupt-cies—WorldCom, Global Crossing, Adelphia Communications and Tyco International — still rippling through board-rooms, courtrooms, Wall Street and the American economy. In their wake, a new era, however unsettled and imperfect, is emerging, one in which CEOs and corporate board members are now directly held — primarily via the Sarbanes-Oxley Act — to standards of accountability that should have been more universally met all along and that are still resisted.

Under the new rules, U.S. chief executives must regularly pledge in writing to regulators that they understand and take responsibility for their companies' books. That and other such new regulations may not entirely prevent the next Enron. But Enron's saga shows they are much-needed steps — and likely Lay's most enduring legacy. If "I didn't know" ever cut it, it doesn't anymore.

U.S. troops can survive war-caused stress disorder

BY MICHAEL FUMENTO
Scripps Howard

Scripps Howara

If you know of the infamous face slap in the film "Patton," you know that war-related psychiatric problems sometimes been biamed on cowardice. It doesn't help that what's collectively known as "post-traumatic stress disorder" doesn't show up on X-rays, brain scans or blood tests.

Thus the authors of a July 1 New England Journal of Medicine study performed a vital service by being the first to assess the mental health of troops immediately after their tours rather than years later. Further, they were the first to collect information before the stress occurred. Finally, they showed that the worry of stigmatization prevented 40 percent of those who needed help from seeking it.

The researchers, from the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, surveyed more than 6,000 Army and Marine infantry either before or soon after they deployd. Before, about 5 percent of respondents met the strict criteria for post-ramunatic stress disorder—about the same percentage as in the U.S. gender of the same percentage as in the U.S. gender of Algabantstan voterans and twice that number of Iraq vets were diagnosed with the stress disorder.

There was a general correlation between the amount of combat and level of stress disorder; almost a fifth of the troops with the stress disorder reported being in more than five firefights. But it's not just combat that causes the disorder, and the conflict in Iraq is tailor-made to mess with a soldier's head.

It's a guerrilla war in which soldiers frequently die without warning from remotely detonated explosive devices. In Vietnam, our troops often complained that the enemy couldn't be seen. But in Iraq, it may well be that the enemy isn't even there.

When there is face-to-face combat, attacks are usually instigated by the enemy; 92 percent of respondents reported being attacked or ambushed, the study found. Soldiers see the suffering of innocent civilians everywhere because they are the enemy's main target; three-fourths of respondents said they observed ill or injured women or children they couldn't help.

But that's hardly the end of it.

Forty percent of our Iraq troops are from National Guard and Reserve units (though they weren't part of this study). While they are performing admirably, many just weren't psychologically prepared for war. Not that anybody is exempt from post-traumatic stress disorder, a large portion of the troops in the study were from the crack SZnd Airborne Division.

We also have many soldiers in support units who may have expected war, but not up close and personal. This led to the fiasco in which Jessica Lynch's maintenance battalion couldn't defend itself because it failed to keep its weapons clean.

Want more? It's been almost a century since we've fought an enemy that doesn't take prisoners — unless to murder them. And it must be tough to risk your neck for people who often spit on you because they're convinced you're there to colonize them.

Yet the worst mental enemy in war is uncertainty. In Vietnam and Desert Storm you knew when you'd be leaving. But President Clinton slashed the Army from 18 divisions to 10 and President Bush won't expand it. Thus we're both stretching reserves to the breaking point and bitterly disappointing troops who were told they'd soon be home with their families.

Yet there is good news. Casualty rates for the Iraq and Afghan wars are tiny compared to previous wars. Restoring somebody's psyche is easier than raising the dead. Further, we've come a long way from the Patton treatment. Indeed, there's a government center devoted exclusively to studying and treating post-traumatic stress disorder.

And although Vietnam vets also had a high stress-disorder rate, the representation of the vet who "goes postal" with an automatic rifle, is an addict, or can't keep a job that doesn't involve holding a cardboard sign is a media myth.

Viet vets are as successful, if not more so, in virtually every way than those who didn't serve. Indeed, all vets — combat and otherwise — give society a special group of people with different perspectives than non-vets.

Our troops can face down and defeat any enemy, including the mental demons of war. Then they will provide a rich source of tough, motivated civilians for decades to come.

'Game nights' gain popularity in bars, cafes

From Uno to Weakest Link. games rule

BY MARTHA IRVINE The Associated Press

CHICAGO - Some cozy up at coffee houses to challenge friends to a game of Monopoly or, perhaps, Battleship. Others gather in pubs for a rowdy night of trivia, with prizes ranging from bragging rights to baseball tickets.

"Game night" has become the rage in many U.S. cities, as people search for new ways to socialize beyond the traditional bar

"Everyone really gets into it," says Samantha Donaldson, a 25-year-old government worker who recently began competing in the packed "quizzo trivia night" at the Penn. Avenue Pour House in Washington, D.C. She's en joyed answering questions that test her breadth of knowledge, such as one category that challenged players to identify famous people with the initials "J.J." (James Joyce and Jermaine Jackson among them).

But quiz night - a tradition with British roots that's gained popularity over the years with TV shows such as "Who Wants To Be Millionaire" and "Weakest Link" - is just one version of game night.

Ryoko Patrascu, 17, of Chicago, left, and Victoria Marsezalik, 18, of Harwood Heights, III., play the ancient Chinese board game of "Go" at a meeting of the Evanston Go Club, in Evanston, Ill. "Game nights" that feature everything from trivia quizzes to old standbys like Monopoly and Scrabble are becoming increasingly popular at bars, cafes and coffee houses "It's not the nerdy thing that

Robin LaSota, a 36-year-old Chicagoan, has started storing Cranium - a popular game first marketed at Starbucks — in the trunk of her car.

You just never know when it might come in handy," says LaSota, who's helped her Stanford University alumni club organize game nights in people's homes.

"It makes gatherings more fun and meaningful."

At least one board game-maker says the notion that game night is only for kids or those with a limited social calendar also is disap-people might think it is. It's actually a great way to meet people, says Eric Poses, a 30-year-old from Santa Monica, Calif., who created the game Loaded Questions in 1997. That game, which is making the rounds at coffee house es and bars, features queries aimed at sparking conversation about hidden talents and favorite pastimes, among other things. The fad seems to be having an impact on sales of "adult" board games

They were up 5 percent in 2003, compared with the previous year, according to The NPD Group a research firm that tracks toy and game sales. That's a notable increase, say those in the industry, since overall toy sales fell about 3 percent during the same period.

"Obviously, games are something that stand the test of time." says Jim Silver, publisher of Toy Book a trade publication

That's certainly the case with Go, an ancient Asian game in which players strategically place black and white "stones" on a board to gain territory.

Mark Rubenstein, 52-year-old software developer, used to call it a good night when more than two people showed up at an Evanston, Ill., cafe to play the game in the mid-'90s. Now, as many as 40 players come to play on any given night.

Sonja Rygielski, a 17-year-old high school student from Chicago, sought out the club after seeing a Japanese cartoon called "Hikaru No Go." about a boy who is inhabited by the ghost of an old Go player. "It gets your mind going when there's no school," she said, while taking a break from a game

lege student whose math instructor introduced him to Go - says he was looking for something bevond computer games.

"This is three-dimensional." he says. "You can talk to the person you're playing."

Not that video games have to be anti-social

Teens in Lake Oswego, Ore. and elsewhere are creating their own version of game night by hosting "LAN" parties — hooking other's Xbox each GameCube or PlayStation games via speedy local area networks, so they can play together in the same room while eating pizza.

Some call it the new alternative to the traditional sleepover.

On the adult end of the spectrum pub and coffee house owners say game nights help bring in

"It's a good way to build a loyal clientele that feels warmly about the place and invested in the place," says Maurice Collins, owner of The Wild Colonial Tavern in Providence, R.I., which has a quiz night every Sunday.

But Collins says to watch out for quiz masters who don't double-check their facts - including his friend who tried to pass off the answer "giant squid" to this ques-tion: "The blue whale has only one enemy besides man. What is

"People started to boo," Collins recalls, laughing. (He says the correct answer is "killer whale.") Indeed, some game nights get pretty competitive. E-mailing your résumé

NEW YORK - With more and more employers allowing even requesting - online résumé submission, it's important to make your résumé Internet-worthy

It's a different process than designing a résumé to be printed out and mailed. Each kind of computer operating system, such as Windows or Mac OS. translates data differently. So unless you're careful, the employer may not be able to open your e-mailed résumé or the file may look distorted.

To ensure that employers get the résumé that vou want to present:

■ Avoid fancy fonts. Stick with some basic fonts that most computers have, such as Times

New Roman, Arial and Courier New. They are simple and professional and will look the same no matter what kind of software the employer uses to view your resume.

- Save your document in a text format. While a program like Microsoft Publisher enables you to easily add graphics and create an eye-popping résumé, it saves files in a PDF format. The easiest type of file for employers to open would be a TXT file. which is how most word-process ing programs save documents.
- Keep it simple. Stay away from bulleted lists, lots of inden tations and centered alignments.
- Check how the employer would like to receive your résumé. Some may want vou to send it in the body of the e-mail while others prefer to have it as an attached file

Report: Railroads hindering investigations into fatalities

The Associated Press

NEW YORK - Railmads have failed to promptly report hundreds of fatal accidents over the past eight years, a violation of federal regulations that has thwarted numerous investigations into collisions with motor vehicles, The New York Times reported

Enforcement of railroad rules is so lax that federal officials have said they were not even aware of the reporting problems, the newspaper reported on its Web site Sat-

"It's a systemic failure," said James E. Hall, a former chairman of the National Transporta-tion Safety Board. "It's been something that has just not grabbed the attention, unfortunately, of the public.

On average, one person a day dies at a crossing in the United States. Over the past four years, more than twice as many people have been killed at grade crossings as have died in commercial plane crashes.

Most of those deaths are blamed on drivers. But some railroads have hindered investigations into their own culpability by destroying, mishandling or simply losing evidence or not reporting the crashes properly in the first place, the Times found after a seven-month investigation.

Union Pacific, the nation's biggest railroad, was cited by The Times as an example of how railroads repeatedly denied their own responsibility at fatal grade-crossing crashes.

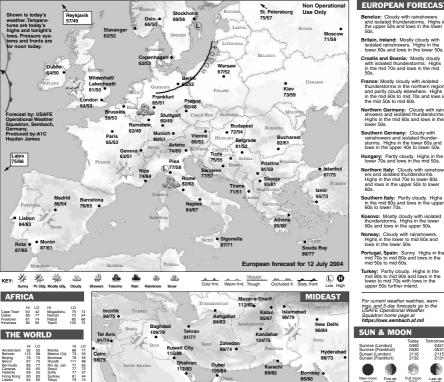

In one recent 18-month period, the newspaper found, seven feder-al and state courts imposed sanctions on Union Pacific for destroying or failing to preserve evidence in crossing accidents, and an eighth court ordered a case re-

DALLAS - Among the rocks in a dry creek bed north of Dallas, two brothers found fossils that looked different and aroused their curiosity.

A Southern Methodist University professor has confirmed that the bone fragments from the town of Prosper came from a mammoth dating to more than 10.000 years

Samuel Wallace, 13, and brother Scott. 9. showed Dr. David Meltzer at SMU's anthropology department other fossils and learned they had a crow shark's tooth more than 80 million years old and a piece of bone from a cervid, which is like a modern-day elk

We thought it was really neat to find something like that because we'd never found anything that old before," Samuel Wallace told The Dallas Morning News.

Foul fumes to rich fuel

BRIDPORT — The owners of a local farm are seeking state permission to set up an onsite, manure-to-energy operation that could be generating electricity by October.

Eugene, Ernest and Earl Audet owners of the Blue Spruce Farm filed an application for a certificate of public good last month to embark on the estimated $1 million project.

The system would allow the Audets to sell about $125,000 per year in electricity to the Central Vermont Public Service Corp. and its customers, and save an estimated $50,000 in annual costs for cattle bedding through materials derived from the manure-to-energy pro cess

'We are hoping, by the end of August, for this [certificate] to be issued," said Blue Spruce Farm attorney Ebenezer Punderson.

"We don't see any problems with this. No one has popped up to dispute this." The project calls for construction of special equipment that will be heated to break down the raw manure produced by the farm's 1,900-head herd and turn it into liquid and solid components, while capturing methane gas.

The gas will be used to operate a 275-kilowatt generator, with the resulting power sold wholesale to CVPS as part of the company's renewable pricing program. That program gives consumers the option of paying a premium price for electricity derived from the Blue Spruce operation and similar projects.

WA EVERETT — Homecoming had to wait until the basketball season. The winter cruise until June.

But the Marysville-Pilchuck High School academic year — delayed a record 49 days by a teacher strike — finally ended with a commencement for the 589-member Class of 2004.

"We adults let you down, but you didn't let yourselves down," state Superintendent Terry Bergeson told the class, one of the largest in Washington.

The graduation — never scheduled in the regular school calendar — would have been held in early June had the walkout not occurred, school officials said.

A judge ordered teachers back to work in October. An agreement was reached on a two-year contract for the 664 teachers in April.

During stalled contract talks, the senior class president organized rallies and a camp-out to agitate for an end to the walkout.

Electrician sentenced

OH PAINESVILLE — An electrician was sentenced to 30 days in jail for causing a boy's death by improperly installing electric wires on a bumper car ride at a country fair.

Nick Rock, 81, also was sentenced to two years on probation. He was convicted in June of reckless homicide and involuntary manslaughter.

Witnesses said 8-year-old Greyson Yoe was holding a metal rail enclosing the Scooter ride when he called out "Help me" and dropped to the ground as he was electrocuted last August.

3 teens charged

FL VALRICO — Three white teenagers have been charged with spray-painting a swastika, profanities and references to the Ku Klux Klan on a black neighbor's garage and driveway.

Damian Yeager, 15, Phillip Belcher, 14, and John Bailey, 16, admitted using green paint to deface the home of Brenda Snow, said Hillsborough County sheriff's spokeswoman Debbie Carter.

The teens were charged with criminal mischief as a hate crime, which is a felony, and processed at the Juvenile Assessment Center.

Snow said she found the paint and called authorities.

Belcher and Bailey had stayed over at Yeager's house, a few blocks away from Snow's home, officials said. The youths all had green paint on their hands and clothes, Carter said.

Snow said she also found a paint on her cars, one of which had been vandalized with paint two weeks earlier. It was unclear whether the incidents were related.

Neighbors offered to help pressure wash the paint off her driveway and paint over her garage, Snow said.

Tree bug alert

CONCORD — The discovery of several hemlock trees infected with a harmful insect has agriculture officials scouring the state for other trees sold by the Chichester nursery where they were found this summer.

The state has been struggling for years to keep the infestations of the wooly adelgid at bay. The tiny bugs attach to the underside of branches and suck out sap, which ultimately kills the tree.

ultimately kills the tree.

Tom Durkis, state entomologist, said that so far New Hampshire's aggressive surveillance and quarantine policies have kept outbreaks limited to small pockets, a considerable feat given the widespread infestation in Massachus.

But Durkis said that last month several infested trees were discovered. The trees were part of a shipment of several hundred that had arrived from growers in Tennessee.

LOUISVILLE — Kentucky tobacco farmers are waging a fight against a fast-spreading disease already being blamed for inflicting millions of dollars of damage to the state's signature burley

Blue mold surfaced earlier than usual this year, and the contagious fungus that damages tobacco leaves has gained a foothold in some top-producing counties, crop experts said.

In some parts of a state that is the nation's leading burley tobacco producer, the outbreak looms as one of the worst ever, said Gary Palmer, a University of Kentucky extension tobacco specialist

For some growers, it could become more devastating than the outbreak in 1979, when Palmer said he saw "grown men almost crying because they had a beautiful crop one day, and a few days later it was in rass."

So far this year, blue mold has been found in 48 of Kentucky's 120 counties, Palmer Said. Three-fourths of the state is under a blue mold watch or warning, he said. The mold is spread by spores through the air.

Hatem Fariz, 31, pleaded innocent to wire and mail fraud charges. Another hearing was set and prosecutors said they planned to ask that Fariz be held without bail.

Prosecutors said Fariz defrauded the food stamp program five years ago at a store he owned in Chicago. Defense attorney Luis Galvan declined to comment on the charges.

Fariz lives in Spring Hill, Fla, where he is free on $1.1 million bail while awaiting trial on federal racketeering and conspiracy charges in a separate case accusing him of being a member of a terrorist organization. He was arrested at his mother's home near Chicago.

According to the Chicago indictment, Fariz and his employers rang up transactions on customers' food stamp debit cards from May 1999 to December 2000. Under the indictment, the cardholders received cash instead of groceries, and Fariz collected a fee.

British court ruling sets off divorce debate

Ex-wife wins right to part of soccer star's future earnings

> BY THOMAS WAGNER The Associated Press

LONDON -- A landmark ruling giving a woman more than a third of her ex-husband's future earnings in professional soccer set off a fierce debate about divorce laws and the future of marriage in Britain.

The Court of Appeal ruled last week that Karen Parlour, 33, who had three children with soccer star Ray Parlour during their seven-year relationship, is entitled to 37 percent of his $2.2 million annual salary to ac-knowledge the role she played in his team's success. That means she will receive $820,000 a year for four years, when the settlement will be reviewed

Some praised the court for finally rewarding a woman for the valuable contributions she had made as a wife and a mother in a wealthy family

Others said the decision will leave rich men with little choice but to demand prenuptial agreements to protect themselves from "gold-diggers."

Britain's tabloids clearly saw Ray Parlour, a midfielder for Arsenal, this year's English soccer champions, as the loser in the ruling. "Fleeced," "Taken to the Cleaners," "Victory for Women" and "He Shoots, She Scores" were among the headlines.

Karen Parlour previously won a court decision boost-ing the 31-year-old athlete's maintenance payments from $220,800 a year to $460,000. The judge in that case said she deserved much credit for persuading Ray Parlour to "grow up" and drop out of the hard-drinking "laddish" culture of some Arsenal players.

On Wednesday, Lord Justice Thorpe ruled a huge excess of income was left over after taking into account Karen Parlour's maintenance needs. It would be "discriminatory and wrong" for the ex-husband to have sole control over that surplus during the next four years, he said. The implications for other millionaire stars and high-paid businessmen were obvious.

Emma Hartley, a divorce expert at the Withers law firm in London, said the rulings were the first to apply the "overriding principle of fairness" to income.

"It certainly means that wives are going to get a far greater share of husband's income where the income is more than they both need in order to live on." she said. "I am sure this will be another reason why more people will want to do prenuptial agreements."

Political gossip editor goes on-air

Ana Marie Cox, editor of the political gossip Web site Wonkette.com, will go from online to on-air as a correspondent for MTV during the Democratic National Convention

Cox will report from the floor and around Boston during the convention, set for July 26-29, as part of the cable channel's "Choose or Lose 2004" coverage

"Sure, I had been looking forward to watching the convention on C-SPAN from the air-conditioned comfort of my home office," the 31-year-old said, "but if I can't do that, appearing on television myself is the next best Cox, who also will report for MTV.com, will join MTV News correspondents Gideon Yago and Sway.

'The Price is Right' for a bronze statue

A bronze statue honoring Bob Barker, longtime host of "The Price Is Right," was unveiled at the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences Hall of Fame Plaza in Los Angeles. Barker, 80, was named to the organization's hall of fame last month. "I think that this is just the culmination of everything for me professionally, I really do, and I'm delighted that the academy chose to do it," he said Thursday.

Barker has hosted the game show since it premiered in 1972.

Trump searches for next apprentice

Donald Trump hasn't even chosen his second apprentice, and he's already looking for his third.

Trump spent Friday interviewing prospective candidates for the third season of his hit NBC reality show. "The Apprentice," at Universal Studios Hollywood in Los Angeles on Friday

Some 200 hopefuls waited in line for a casting call.

The real estate mogul is only expected to make one other appearance during the casting tour - at the Trump Tower in New York City on July 30

Auditions will be held in Miami. Boston, Honolulu, Salt Lake City, Philadelphia, San Antonio, Jacksonville, Fla., Minneapolis, Chicago, San Francisco, Memphis, Tenn., Las Vegas, Cincinnati and Seattle. NBC says prospective applicants should be able to "take risks, bounce back after failing, succeed in a cutthroat environment, go against the tide, remain focused, think creatively and be a leader."

Soul singer gets memorial bench

Fans of 1960s soul singer Darrell Banks have raised $1,500 for a bench to stand at his grave, previously marked by a small disc wedged into a lawn at Detroit Me morial Park Cemeter

On July 17, David Meikle and Lowell Boileau plan to gather in this Detroit suburb with Ranks fans to dedicate the Darrell Banks Memorial Bench. Meikle and Boileau are creators of the Web site SoulfulDetroit.com

'Invisible,' and loving it

Matthew Broderick enjoys life just outside the spotlight

BY BARRY KOLTNOW The Orange County Register

atthew Broderick has learned how to make himself invisible. The trick, according to the actor, is to walk behind a celebrity who's more famous than

ou. "I learned that when I was working on a movie with Meg yan a few years ago," he explained. "If I fell behind about 10 steps, everybody would run up and bother her without even noticing me. It was great."

Broderick said he has employed the same trickery on occasion when he ventures out of his New York City home with his wife of seven years, Sarah Jessica Parker, the very famous star of the now-defunct HBO series "Sex and the

"If you're with a super-famous person, like Sarah, you can use their status to your advantage," he said. "I do it all the time at premieres and other public events. People want to talk to Sarah much more than they want to talk to me. I can just stand there and be invisible

"But it's getting harder since our son was born. There are many people who seem to find it interesting to photo graph a celebrity couple with a baby. It's not really me they're interested in: it's Sarah and the baby. I just happen to be there Well, Sarah Jessica Parker isn't the one who has a new movie. That would be Broderick, who stars opposite Nicole Kidman in the remake of the 1975 cult classic "The Stepford Wives.

In the new version, which plays more as a comedy than a thriller like the original, Broderick is an anonymous television network vice president married to the high-profile president of the same network.

After she suffers a sudden reversal of fortune, he moves the family from the big city to the placid suburb of Step ford, Conn., where men can be men and women can be ro-

The original film was intended to explore the male reac-tion to what was then an embryonic feminist movement. It's almost three decades later and the filmmakers apparently believe the same issues exist.

"Personally, I have never had a problem with my wife's fame and fortune," he added with a laugh. "In fact, I encouraged her to sign for another season on TV because I knew they'd back up a truckload of money. I don't mind at all if she makes more money.

Broderick said he never considered his marital situation as similar to the one depicted in the movie until he started talking to members of the media.

"I swear that I never thought about it until two days ago when I began doing interviews for this movie and reporters started asking me if I thought my life was anything like my character's. I still don't see it, but I guess that's bound to happen if you're married to someone who's on another level of fame like Sarah."

Broderick's level of fame is hardly chopped liver. The actor was born 41 years ago into a show business family. His father was the late James Broderick, who starred on the respected TV series "Family."

The younger Broderick resisted the actor's life for a while, until he made his professional acting debut opposite his father in the stage play "On Valentine's Day." He was

In 1983, Broderick won the first of his two Tonys in Neil Simon's "Brighton Beach Memoirs." He won his second in 1995 for the revival of the musical "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying."

More recently, he starred with Nathan Lane in Mel Brooks' "The Producers," the record-breaking production that will be turned into a movie next year with Lane and Broderick reprising their roles. Broderick said he idolized Brooks before working with him, but was concerned about the plan to turn a cult film into a Broadway musical "Like so many people, I grew up a huge Mel Brooks fan," he said.

"I used to fall asleep at night listening to the "2,000-year-old Man" records. And I memorized all of 'Young Frankenstein." "So it was a thrill when Mel asked me to be in this new show, but I couldn't help but to worry that we might be messing up a classic. Sure, people look at 'The Producers' now and say it was a no-brainer, but at the time I was concerned about whether it would work "Then one day, Nathan (who beat out Broderick for the Tony) said: 'Listen, it's Mel's [project] to screw up. If it Broderick first was noticed in the 1983 film "War-Games," in which he played a high schooler who almost starts World War III while playing computer games. Three years later, he starred in "Ferris Bueller's Day Off," which remains his most memorable movie role.

He recently moved to the small screen for the ABC movie "The Music Man," but will return to the big screen in "The Last Shot" and "Marie and Bruce," his next two movies after "The Stepford Wives."

But those new films will have to wait until after the summer. He said he's taking a few months off to work on his role as father to 19-month-old James Wilke Broderick.

Adjusting to child's homosexuality

Dear Abby: I noticed that my 16-year-old daughter wasn't her usual self. So I questioned her one night and asked if there w anything bothering her, or if she was worried about something She started crying and told me she is gay. I responded by crying with her and asking her if she was sure. She said she was. I told her she is still my daughter and I love her very much, but that I can't help hoping she's just confused and that as time goes on, she might see that this is not who she really is. I'm trying my best to accept it, but it is difficult at

Dear Confused: Your feelings are normal. Most parents have plans and dreams for their children, and your child has turned out differently than you expected. I admire your daughter for her courage and honesty in telling you about her orientation, and I admire you for making it safe for her to do so

Your next sten is to contact PFLAG. I have mentioned this organization many times before in my column. It offers support groups, educational outreach and more to families and friends of gay, lesbian, intersexual and transgendered family members. The Web site is

Dear Abby: I am nearly in my 30s and have this little problem. I tend to fall in love really easily. I sometimes can't tell if it's love, lust, or just a strong connection. I have lost some very good friends because I became insecure and jealous when they showed an interest in other peo ple. They weren't leading me on they weren't giving me mixed signals — I just fell for these people.

Last week I was so depressed I didn't eat for four days because of an incident like this. I got jealous because the object of my affections was on a date.

Rationally, I know I need to be there as a friend because most great relationships are built on friendships first. How can I tame my heart and not fall so easily? — The fallen in D.C.

Dear Fallen: It isn't your heart that needs taming - it is your insecurity! When people encoun-ter needy, clingy, jealous people, their instinct is to run, not walk, in the opposite direction. Counsel-ing could help you. You must get a grip and learn to like yoursel more. Once you do, you'll feel less threatened if someone you like wants to take his (or her) time before making a commitment.

Marriage stifled by depressed wife

Dear Annie: I have been married to "Doris" for 30 years, and we have three grown children. Doris and I have not been intimate for over two years, and our sex life wasn't so great before that. We don't sleep in the same room, much ss the same bed Doris and I get along OK, but I've lost all desire for her. In fact, I don't really want to be married to her anymore. We never go out together. We eat our meals at different times and in different areas of the house. We spend most of our time in separate rooms, reading differ-

Dear Denver: You are justified. However sounds to us as if Doris is clinically depressed. and she may be going through menopause as well. The constant exercise probably makes her feel good because it releases endor phins (natural pain relievers) into her bloodstream. Has Doris discussed her lack of libido and her social isolation with her doctor? Ask her to look into this before her attitude wrecks what's left of your mar riage. She needs to understand how close to the brink you are.

Dear Annie: I have worked for my current employer for six years. I started out doing grunt work and ended up as assistant manager. As soon as I became pregnant, however, I was demoted. Two months ago, our manager took a job in another city, and I thought I would be moved back to the assistant manager's position. When nothing happened, I called my district manager, and he said, "I figured you would not want that position because you are a mom." I was incensed. Worse, they hired a man, and I am training him. I have made up my mind to quit. Am I overreacting

- North Dakota Dear North Dakota: Has your district manager been living under a rock for the past 20 years? Demoting you when you became pregnant, and passing you over for a promotion because you have children, is called sexual discrimination, and you can sue the company. We recommend you contact a lawyer. Justin Labonte gets first Busch victory from his window, it was hard to tell who was prouder — father or son.

Labonte extended his family's winning tradition to another generation Saturday, earning his first NASCAR

Busch series victory at the Tropicana Twister 300 as his father Terry looked on.

"To me, personally, it was bigger than any win I've ever had," said Terry Labonte, a two-time NASCAR Winston Cup champion. "I couldn't even talk after the race. It's pretty special, it really is I don't know what else to say."

Running on Mike Wallace's bumper for the last three laps, Justin Labonte said he didn't think he could catch Wallace. But Wallace ran out of gas after they took the white flag for the final lap, and Justin Labonte flew by him and cruised to the win

He beat Jason Keller by 0.419 seconds. Jeff Burton was third. "I was going to do a burnout," Justin Labonte said, "but I can remember my dad saying nobody should do a burnout."

Terry Labonte has always been understated in his victory celebrations, getting the checkered flag and holding it out the window as he takes his victory lap. There also was the matter of the engine. Justin Labonte is running part-time on the Busch series this year, and he knew he couldn't afford to blow out his best engine.

So while the rest of the field left the track, Justin Labonte drove to the flagstand and asked for the checkered flag. It dropped on the roof, and lay there for several seconds before Justin climbed halfway out of the car and grabbed it.

"He didn't have the fastest car, but something good happened to a good person and a good family. and that's pretty cool to see," Burton said. "He earned the race, nobody gave it to him. People will say he got lucky. They made the right call. They made the right calls to win the race."

Terry Labonte said his cell phone started ringing as he walked from the hauler when he'd watched the race — "Wore a hole in the top of it" — to victory lane, and din't stop. It was still ringing about an hour later, as he and Justin talked with peropters.

Schumacher wins British GP

SILVERSTONE, England — Michael Schumacher was tested Sunday at the British Grand Prix — if only for 15 laps.

Schumacher won for the 10th time in 11 races this season, but not before holding off last-ditch challenges from McLaren's Kimi Raikkonen and Ferrari teammate Rubens Barrichello.

A crash on the 40th lap resulted in a safety car, reducing Schumacher's seemingly comfortable lead and setting up an intense 15-lap race to the finish. Schumacher prevailed again. however, for the 80th victory of his career. Raikkonen finished 2.1 seconds behind with Barrichello another second back.

"It's just unbelievable what's happening to me and the team this year," said Schumacher, whose winning time was 1 hour, 24 minutes, 42.700 seconds. His average speed was 135.738 mph.

Things got interesting when Jarno Trulli of Renault crashed his car with 20 laps to go. He walked away after the car had spun several times and flipped over, eventually landing in a graveel run-off area.

The crash and safety care allowed Raikkonen a third pit stop. Schumacher, who was safely in the lead, had already made two and didn't need another, and was anticipating pulling away when Raikkonen stopped again.

When the safety car pulled off after the 45th lap, Schumacher held a narrow 0.2-second lead over Raikkonen. The last 15 laps featured some of the best racing of the season, with Schumacher slowly pulling away from Raikkonen and Barrichello to win is third British Grand Prix.

NASCAR changes rules for scoring on pit road

JOLIET, Ill. — Recognizing that complicated rules changes have led to new problems, NASCAR President Mike Helton said Saturday the series will return to its old way of scoring cars on pit road under a caution.

The positions of the cars on the track will be "frozen" once the yellow flag waves, but Helton said pit lane will now be active.

The change is effective immediately, and will affect all three of NASCAR's top series.

"That's how we used to do it, and it's pretty black-and-white,"

Helton said.

Unlike many racing bodies, NASCAR does not revert back to the order of the last completed green-flag lap when there's a cau-

Drivers used to race to the finish line when a yellow flag came out, but NASCAR scrapped that practice last fall for safety considerations.

Instead, NASCAR decided to "freeze the field" under caution.

The change has caused much debate — and confusion — over how to freeze the drivers' position, and Helton was forced to apologize after drivers at the MBNA 400 in Dover ran 24 laps under caution while officials struggled to figure out the correct order of cars.

Under the change announced Saturday, a car pitting behind the start-finish line when the caution comes out must reach that line before the lead car gets to the same point on the track. If it doesn't, it loses a lan to the leader.

Cars pitting in front of the start-finish line have to reach the pit road exit line before the lead car reaches the same point on the track to stay on the lead lap. Antennas and cameras will be used to ensure proper scoring.

Austria upsets U.S. in Fed Cup

The Associated Press

INNSBRUCK, Austria — Barbara Schwartz beat Lisa Raymond 10-8 in the third set Sunday to clinch Austria's upset of the United States in the Fed Cup quarterfinals.

Coupled with Barbara Schett's

6-3, 6-2 win over Chanda Rubin in the day's opening match, Schwartz's 7-6

(3), 4-6, 10-8 victory gave Austria a 3-1 lead in the best-of-five series.

"It's an unbelievable performance," Schett said. "Reaching the semifinals for the second time in three years is a great accomplishment for a country like Austria."

The United States has won the Fed Cup 17 times and reached the semifinals in 35 of the competition's 41 years.

But Raymond and Rubin gave the United States a third-string squad, because such stars as Venus and Serena Williams, Lindsay Davenport and Jennifer Capriati opted not to play.

"I knew it would be hard to get people in July," first-year U.S. captain Zina Garrison said. "I didn't look at it like I was missing my four top players. I had full confidence in the players here."

Austria also knocked out the United States in 2002, when then-captain Billie Jean King kicked Capriati off the team on On Sunday, Schwartz, ranked just 324th, was carried off the court on her teammates' shoulders after she held on to beat the 30th-ranked Raymond in a nearly three-hour match.

"I had her a couple of times, but I didn't put the nail in the coffin," said Raymond.

Federer earns first Swiss title

GSTAAD, Switzerland — Wimbledon champion Roger Federer beat Igor Andreev 6-2, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3 Sunday to win the Swiss Open for the first time.

It's the tour-leading seventh title of the season for the top-ranked Federer, who has won his last nine finals.

"I always believed that I could win in Switzerland," said Federer, who adjusted quickly to this tournament's red clay after beating Andy Roddick in the Wimbledon final for his 24th straight victory on grass.

Federer entered Sunday with 17 tour titles, including three from Grand Slam tournaments, but he never had managed to win in his home country. Last year, Federer won Wimbledon then came to the Swiss Open and lost in the final to Jiri Novak.

Federer is only the second Swiss man to win the Swiss Open. The other was Heinz Gunthardt in 1980; Gunthardt later coached Steffi Graf and worked with Jennifer Capriati this year.

Hawks waiting for Martin

ATLANTA — The Atlanta Hawks are willing to wait for Kenyon Martin.

The New Jersey Nets' free agent was expected to leave Atlanta on Saturday with a six-year maximum contract offer — as much as $85 million.

"Going through the process, we let the guy know we have a great town and a great facility and we have an interest in putting the best team together," Hawks vice president Dominique Wilkins told The Associated Press Saturday.

Martin, however, is a restricted free agent, which means if he signs the Hawks' offer sheet, New Jersey can take 15 days to decide whether to match it.

By that point, the free agent market may have dwindled considerably. Players can begin signing with new teams on Wednesday, and if the Nets decide on the 15th day to match the offer, Atlanta — and its $20 million in cap space — could be left without a high-profile free agent.

Martin has said he would prefer to remain with New Jersey, but the Nets may not be willing to match a maximum offer. The 6-foot-9 power forward has also visited the Denver Nuggets.

Martin, a 2004 All-Star, averaged 16.7 points and 9.5 rebounds for the Nets last season. The former Cincinnati standout was the first pick in the 2000 NBA draft, and has helped the Nets reach the Reports: Pacers looking to trade Harrington for Jackson

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indiana Pacers are negotiating a trade that would send forward Al Harrington to Atlanta for Stephen Jackson, according to reports.

"We're close and hopefully it will be done soon. I'm definitely hoping it works out," Jackson told The Indianapolis Star on Saturday from his home in Port Arthur, Texas.

The Star and ESPN.com reported Saturday night that the 26-year-old Jackson would sign a six-year contract worth $44 million with Atlanta and then be traded to the Pacers for Harrington.

Harrington, who has two years and $13.3 million left on his contract, is one of the NBA's top sixth men but wants more playing time.

"No extension was agreed upon. That was never a condition for Shaquille," Rogers said. "He wanted to go to an environment that was a team environment. We feel confident that that's what Pat Riley and [owner!] Micky Arises have created as a culture. This is the type of place that Shaquille would love to finish his carper."

In Los Angeles, the formal announcement of Rudy Tomjanovich's hiring as the Lakers' new coach was partially overshadowed by the O'Neal trade talk and Kobe Bryant's free agency.

Tomjanovich said he spoke with O'Neal, but declined to divulge any details. "I just hope all those things turn out well," he said.

Los Angeles general manager Mitch Kupchak said there was nothing new to report on O'Neal.

"I don't know how this is going to play out, I really don't," he said. "When there is something to report, we'll report it."

Kupchak said that he had not spoken with O'Neal or his representatives, but added: "Shaquille has a unique way of letting me know information I should know."

Last year, O'Neal averaged a career-low 21.5 points with 11.5 rebounds and 2.48 blocks.

QUIMPER, France — Thor Hushovd sprinted to the finish line to win the rain-soaked eighth stage of the Tour de France on Sunday, with Lance Armstrong and other top contenders behind in the trailing pack.

Hushovd, from Norway, used a closing burst of speed to win the 104-mile stage from Lamballe to Quimper. The ride included four modest hill climbs and was run mostly through rain.

"The Vikings have returned to Britany," said Hushovd, who completed the stage in 3 hours, 54 minutes, 22 seconds. "Today really was my day. I'm very happy." Overall, Armstrong remained in sixth place, 9 minutes and 35 seconds behind leader Thomas Voeckler. Jan Ullrich is still 55 seconds behind Armstrong. American Tyler Hamilton is 36 seconds behind the five-time champion.

All three riders clocked the same time as Hushovd. Ullrich finished 21st, Hamilton 30th and Armstrong 33rd.

Hushovd placed third in the first stage, second in Stage 2 and wore the overall leader's yellow jersey for one day in the first week. He said he is aiming to win the green jersey for the best sprinter when the Tour finishes in Paris on July 25

Levet wins Scottish, earns spot in British

LUSS, Scotland — Thomas Levet matched the lowest round of his career Sunday, an 8-under 63 that gave him a one-shot victory in the Scottish Open and put his vacation plans on hold.

Along with his first victory in three years, the Frenchman earned an unlikely trip to the British Open.

Golf roundup

"It is something enormous," Levet said after a 29 on the back nine. "I don't think I will sleep tonight. Too much adrenaline. Too much happiness."

With five players jockeying for the lead on a cool, gray afternoon along the bonnie banks of Loch Lomond, the 35-year-old Levet was not even in the picture. All that changed with a birdie-birdie-eagle-birdie run that started on the par-3 11th, and an approach into 3 feet on the final hole for the birdie that mattered.

One spot at the British Open was available to the top finisher at Loch Lomond not already eligible. Levet, who finished at 15-under 269, got his third European tour victory and another shot at the claret jug that eluded him two years ago when he lost in a five-hole playoff to Ernie Els.

"I don't have any clothes," Levet said. "My wife was planning a holiday next week. She'll go to Troon instead."

Michael Campbell was poised to win until trying to drive the green on the 345-yard 14th and going into the creek, making bogey, then dropping another stroke by blading a bunker shot over the green on the 15th.

He still had a chance to tie on the final hole, but his 18-foot birdie just turned away. Campbell finished with a 70. Defending champion Ernie Els also was in the hunt, but he bogeyed the 12th and missed an 8-foot birdie putt on the par-5 13th that robbed him of momentum. Still, he closed with a 68 and tied for third with David Howell (70).

James leads Senior Players

DEARBORN, Mich. — England's Mark James shot a 5-under 67 on Saturday and took advantage of Dana Quigley's quadruple bogey to take a three-stroke lead in the Senior Players Championship.

James took a 14 under 202 total into the final round while second-round leaders Gary McCord and Spain's Jose Maria Canizares were tied for second after 71s

Quigley shared the lead with James at 14 under until he fell apart at the par-5 17th. After his drive left him 232 yards from the hole, he went for the green, but fell short and into the water.

He dropped, then found water again before hitting over the green. Quigley then chipped well past the hole before two-putting for a 9.

Coceres in control of Deere SILVIS, Ill. — Argentina's Jose Coceres put himself in good position to win his third PGA Tour title, shooting two 3-under 68s to take a two-stroke lead in the John Deere Classic.

Coceres, whose only bogey in 25 holes Saturday came on his final hole, had a 15-under 198 total. Australia's Greg Chalmers was second after finishing off a third-round 69 with a birdie.

Both Coceres and Chalmers finished the rain-delayed second round on Saturday morning, with Coceres taking a one-stroke lead over Chalmers into the third round.

Mallon breaking away

NIAGARA FALLS, Ontario — U.S. Women's Open champion Meg Mallon shot a 7-under 65 to extend her lead to four strokes in the Canadian Women's Open.

Mallon, 16 under for the tournament and 26 under in her last five rounds, is in position to become only the third player to follow a U.S. Women's Open win with a victory the next week.

Beth Daniel, the winner last year in British Columbia, was second after a 67.

Rangers ace can't survive two innings at Fenway

BOSTON - The Boston Red Sox no longer need to rely so heavily on Manny Ramirez and While Ramirez hit two of Boston's five home runs, the Red Sox used a balanced attack, amassing a season-high 21 hits to rout the Texas Rangers 14-6 on Saturday night for their fifth straight victory.

"With everyone back [healthy], it's just the added confidence that everyone needed," said Red Sox second baseman Mark Bellhorn, who tied a career high with four hits, including a homer and three RBIs.

"Manny and David have carried us, but now up and down the lineup we know we can get it done.'

Bellhorn, Nomar Garciaparra, and Jason Varitek also homered for the Red Sox, who have their longest winning streak since also winning five in a row May 21-26. Boston roughed up Kenny Rogers, who entered leading the majors with 12 victories.

The Red Sox's Nos. 1-4 hitters - Johnny Damon, Bellhorn, Garciaparra, and Ramirez — went a combined 15-for-21 with four homers and 10 RBIs. Bellhorn, Garciaparra and Ramirez each had four hits

"The top of our lineup tonight was unbelievable," Red Sox manager Terry Francona said. Derek Lowe (7-8) got off to a rough start, allowing six unearned runs in the second inning

But the Rangers' 6-3 lead didn't last long.

The Red Sox scored five runs off Rogers (12-3) in the bottom of the second. Bellhorn and Ramirez each hit two-run homers in the inning to put the Red Sox up 8-6 and end the night for Rogers

"As frustrating as it was to give up six in the second inning, it was that much more reward-ing to see [us] continually score runs," Lowe

It was the shortest start of the season for Rogers, who gave up eight runs over just 12/3 innings. The loss snapped his career-high eight-game winning streak. Rogers refused comment after the game, but said his pulled right hamstring was not a factor in his poor performance.

"I tip my hat to the Red Sox." Rangers manager Buck Showalter said. "They've done that to a lot of good pitchers this year

Bellhorn's 11th homer came after he committed two errors at second base in the top of the second that led to the Rangers' unearned

Lowe, who allowed 17 earned runs in 161/3 innings in losing his previous three starts, held the Rangers in check after the second, surrendering only one hit over his last five innings. He gave up four hits before being relieved by Alan Embree in the eighth inning.

The Red Sox added three runs in the third inning off John Wasdin on Garciaparra's double and Ramirez's second two-run homer his AL-leading 25th. Ramirez tied his season high for RRIs in a game with five when he singled in the fifth. Varitek's two run shot in the eighth - his 10th - gave the Red Sox a 14-6 lead.

Griffev Jr. goes on DL with injured hamstring

MII.WAUKEE - Ken Griffey Jr. went on the 15-disabled list Sunday with a torn right hamstring and will miss the All-Star

The Cincinnati outfielder was injured Saturday night while trying to run down Brady Clark's fourth-inning drive to right-center in the fourth inning of a 5-0 loss to Milwaukee. An MRI exam

Sunday revealed a partial tear of the muscle

Griffey plans to go to Houston

but narticipate in ceremonies. will not take part in the Home Run Derby or Tuesday's game, Reds spokesman Rob Butcher said. He will be replaced on the NL roster.

Griffey was voted an All-Star starter for the 12th time last week end. He missed more than a month with a torn hamstring that bothered him throughout the 2001 season. He spent two long stints on the disabled list with a torn patella tendon and a torn right hamstring in 2002, then went to the DL twice again last year for a dislocated right shoulder and torn ankle tendon.

All four active players with 500 homers had been scheduled to compete in Monday's Home Run Derby: Barry Bonds (681), Sammy Sosa (553), Rafael Palmeiro (540) and Griffey (501).

Mariners designate Aurilia for assignment, activate Ibanez CHICAGO - The slumping Seattle Mariners designated shortstop Rich Aurilia for assignment on Saturday and activated Raul Ibanez from the 15-day disabled

Aurilia was hitting .241 for the Mariners with four home runs and 28 RBIs in 73 games. He signed a one-year contract with the Mariners in the offseason after eight years with the San Francisco Giants.

The club has 10 days to release trade or send Aurilia outright to the minors. If he is released, Seattle would be responsible to the re-mainder of his $3.15 million salary.
"The writing was on the wall for something to happen," Aurilia

'El Duque' Hernandez starts for Yankees

NEW YORK - Orlando Hernandez returned to the New York Yankees sooner than expected and started Sunday's game against the Tampa Bay Devil Rays in place of Mike Mussina.

Hernandez, believed to be 38 had been expected to make at least one more rehabilitation start for Columbus before the Yankees considered whether to activate

After defecting from Cuba, Hernandez joined the Yankees for the 1998 season and helped them to three straight World Series titles and four AL pennants in five vears Jeter's big hit, A-Rod's big bomb pace N.Y.

NEW YORK - Derek Jeter's three-run double snapped a seventh-inning tie, Alex Rodriguez homered into the left-field upper deck and the New York Yankees beat the Tampa Bay Devil Rays 6-3 on Saturday.
"It's remarkable how far Derek

Jeter has come in the last six, seven weeks," Yankees manager Joe Torre said. "He handles pressure better than any player I've ever been around Jon Lieber (7-5) gave the Yankees their best start in more than two weeks, pitching seven in-nings to win his second consecutive outing. New York has beaten Tampa Bay three straight times after dropping five of six against the New York Mets and Detroit. "I think the command was a little bit better, and that was the key to the ballgame," Lieber said. "That, and keeping the ball down. The slider was up a little bit in that first inning. I think I was overthrowing at times.

Lilly (7-6) didn't allow a baserunner until Garret Anderson singled with two outs in the fourth. but he ended up giving up six runs on six hits in 62/3 innings. Orioles 7, Royals 2: Daniel Cabrera allowed three hits over seven innings and Rafael Palmeiro hit his 541st career home run, leading the Orioles past the visiting Royals. Luis Lopez had a season-high three hits, scored twice and drove in a run for the Orioles, who snapped a three-game skid to avoid falling 12 games under .500 for the first time this season.

Starting in place of injured Sidney Ponson, Cabrera (6-3) didn't ow a runner past first base in beating Kansas City for the second time in 11 days.

Mike Wood (1-2) took the loss for the Royals, who have dropped 14 of 16 while being outscored 110-39

White Sox 3. Mariners 2: Mark Buehrle pitched eight innings and Paul Konerko homered to lead the White Sox in Chicago.

The Mariners have lost a season-high eight straight, their longest streak since September 1992 when they lost a club-record 14 in a row. At 32-53, Seattle is 21 games below .500 for the first time since Aug. 2, 1994. They've also lost 11 straight on the road. Buehrle (9-2) gave up two runs and nine hits in winning for the eighth time in nine decisions Shingo Takatsu pitched the ninth or his fourth save.

Athletics 16, Indians 7: Pinch-hitter Erubiel Durazo's grand slam at Jacobs Field helped Mark Mulder win his 10th straight decision for Oakland.

Mulder (12-2) was sharp early then faltered and gave up six runs over 6²/₃ innings. He still tied San Francisco's Jason Schmidt for the longest winning streak in the majors this year. Travis Hafner had four hits, including his 10th homer and four RBIs for Cleveland.

Rick White (3-4) took the loss in relief as Oakland snapped a four-game losing streak.

Tigers 4, Twins 2: Dmitri Young hit a tiebreaking solo homer in the sixth inning and Nate Robertson pitched into the seventh inning for the visiting Ti-Ivan Rodriguez, Omar Infante and Marcus Thames also hit solo shots as the Tigers won their 41st game, only two short of their total for 2003 when they lost an AL-record 119 games.

Robertson (8-4) pitched 62/3 innings, giving up seven hits and two runs — both unearned. Ugueth Urbina worked the ninth for his 14th save.

Brad Radke (5-5) took the loss for Minnesota

Streaking Cardinals are 8-0 in homestand

BY R.B. FALLSTROM The Associated Press

ST LOUIS - Jim Edmonds is healthy and making a big impact during the St. Louis Cardinals perfect homestand.

Edmonds homered for the fourth straight game and Jeff Suppan worked six innings, helping the Cardinals beat the Chicago Cubs 5-2 on Saturday for their eighth consecutive victory Edmonds missed five starts in month and early July with a groin injury, and the team has clicked his return.

"I think those couple of days off helped a lot." Edmonds said. "I'm just trying to stay in the lineup and do my job."

Ray Lankford, Hector Luna and So Taguchi drove in a run apiece for the NL Central leaders, who are 8-0 on the homestand with one game to go before the All-Star break and have won 10 straight at home overall. The Cardinals are 31-8 against the Cubs at Busch Stadium since 2000 and have an NL-best 54 victories.

Sammy Sosa was 2-for-4 with a homer and double, but fouled out against Jason Isringhausen with a runner on in the eighth and the Cardinals leading 3-2.

Suppan (8-5) allowed two runs on seven hits in six innings with five strikeouts and no walks. In his last three starts. Suppan is 2-0 with a 1.69 ERA.

Five relievers combined on hitless relief the last three innings. Isringhausen got five outs for his 21st save in 25 chances The bullpen has allowed two earned runs in the last 29 innings. Tony Womack walked to start the bottom of the first and went to third on Clement's wild nickoff throw. Lankford, making his first start since June 30, followed with an RBI single. With two outs, Edmonds hit his 20th homer over the right-field wall for a 3-0 lead. Edmonds is batting .255 against the Cubs with 19 strikeouts in 47 at-bats, but has six homers and 11 RBIs in 15

San Diego Padres second baseman Mark Loretta makes a late tag as Colorado's Aaron Miles steals second in the fourth inning of Saturday's game.

Hampton blanks first-place Phils

PHILADELPHIA Hampton pitched eight shutout innings and rookie Charles Thomas homered twice, leading the Atlanta Braves to a 4-0 victory over the NL East-leading Philadelphia Phillies on Saturday.

Hampton (4-8) allowed five hits, struck out five and walked two. It was his longest outing since throwing a complete game in a loss to Arizona on May 18 Hampton beat Philadelphia for the first time since Sept. 23, 2000, when he was a member of the New York Mets. Phillies starter Paul Abbott (0-3) went six innings, allowing five hits and two runs - on solo homers by Thomas and Rafael Furcal. Furcal hit two three-run homers Friday in a 7-6, 10-inning loss to the Phillies.

John Smoltz who blew his second save of the season Friday. pitched the ninth Saturday to preserve the victory and pull Atlanta within two games of the Phils.

Rockies 6, Padres 2: Aaron Cook took a shutout into the seventh inning and Jeromy Burnitz and Todd Greene each hit solo homers, helping the visiting Rockies to their third straight victory

Cook (4-3) allowed one run on eight hits with three strikeouts and three walks. He pitched out of trouble all day, stranding 10 baserunners in six-plus innings. Brian Lawrence (10-6) lasted only four innings for the Padres. who have lost four in a row. He gave up three runs on six hits

Marlins 5, Mets 2: Mike Lowell hit a two-run homer and Ben Howard pitched out of a seventh-inning jam to help the host Marlins heat the Mets

Florida won for only the third time in 10 games, beating Tom Glavine (7-7). He allowed four runs in six innings, and his career record in Miami fell to 6-12 with an ERA of 4.40.

Brad Penny (8-7) shut out New York for six innings but ran into trouble in the seventh. Howard re-tired Cliff Floyd and Richard Hidalgo with the bases loaded to preserve a 4-2 lead. Armando Benitez got the final six outs, four by strikeout, for his 29th save in 31 chances.

Sheets threw eight shutout innings to lead host Milwaukee over Cincinnati.

Ken Griffey Jr hurt his right hamstring while trying to run down Brady Clark's triple in the fourth inning. On Sunday, the Reds put the All-Star outfielder on the 15-day disabled list with a partial tear of the hamstring. which will keep him out of Monday's Home Run Derby and Tues-

Sheets (9-5) allowed five singles struck out eight and walked one to win his third consecutive start. He lowered his NL-leading ERA to 2.26. Luis Vizcaino pitched a perfect ninth to complete Milwaukee's sixth shutout.

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - Even a grizzled veteran like Wilson Alvarez gets pumped up when he pitches against Roger Clemens.

Alvarez outpitched the six-time Cy Young winner and batterymate Paul Lo Duca tuned up for his second straight All-Star game with a three-run homer to lead the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 3-1 victory over the Houston Astros on Saturday.

"It's an honor to beat him. This is a day I have to celebrate, because you don't s that every day," said Alvarez, who made his big league debut in 1989, "When you ing The Man. I'm facing Clemens. I'm facing one of the best.

"When you pitch against a guy like that, it's all motivation. He is somebody I always looked up to."

Alvarez (3-3), making his second spot start since Hideo Nomo went on the disabled list, allowed a run and three hits in six-plus innings.

Eric Gagne pitched two perfect innings - striking out Jeff Bagwell, Lance Berkman and Jeff Kent in the ninth - for his 23rd save this season and 86th in his last 87

Clemens (10-3) allowed three runs and four hits over seven innings and struck out eight in his first game at Dodger Stadium. It was the 36th major-league stadium in which he's pitched.

He received a warm reception from the crowd of 46,321 as he walked to the mound

Clemens gave up just two hits before the tide turned in the sixth, thanks to pesky Dave Roberts, who leads the Dodgers with on a 3-2 pitch and swiped second after several throws to first by Clemens.

"You just try and wear him out, if you can," Clemens said. "Those two guys, Roberts and (Cesar) Izturis, can do a lot of things, so it's to your advantage to keep them off base. I can compare them to those first two guys with Florida in the World Series last year. They can cause you some trouble

Izturis followed with a bloop double just inside the right-field line, and Lo Duca cranked the next pitch into the left-field bullpen for his second home run in three days against the Astros.

Jones doesn't qualify for Olympics 100

BY ROB GLOSTER

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Perhaps it was the stress of fighting doping allegations. Maybe it was the physical and emotional strains of motherhood. Or perhaps time, and a new generation of sprinters, are finally catching up with her.

Marion Jones failed to qualify for the U.S. Olympic team in the 100 meters Saturday night, losing out on a chance to defend her gold medal in her signature event at the Athens Games.

Jones started quickly but seemed to struggle as the race progressed and finished fifth in the final at the U.S. Olympic trials. The top three finishers automatically make the team.

Jones, who won five medals at the 2000 Sydney Games, still can make the Olympic team if she qualifies in the 200 meters or long jump. Or she could be picked for a relay team.

The defeat comes at a difficult time for perhaps the biggest U.S. Olympic star. She is under investigation by the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency, although she has repeatedly denied using drugs and has not been charged by USADA.

The 28-year-old Jones, who seemed a little stunned in the last few strides of the race as she realized she was not going to qualify, walked off the track smiling and even signed a couple of autographs for fans. But she walked quickly past a horde of reporters.

Jones, known for her bubbly personality and media savvy, was escorted by a personal bodyguard as she stormed off the track without answering questions.

"When I talk, you guys have something negative to say. When I don't talk, you have something negative to say," she said. "I'd rather not talk and spend the time with my LaTasha Colander won the final in 10.97 seconds, tied for second fastest in the world this year. World champion Torri Edwards was second in 11.02 and NCAA champion Lauryn Williams took the third Olympic spot in 11.10.

Gail Devers, a two-time Olympic champion in the 100, was fourth in 11.11, followed by Jones in 11.14.

Jones once dominated the 100. In addition to being the reigning Olympic champion, she is a former two-time world champion and had a streak of 42 straight wins in finals from 1997 to 2001.

Jones' boyfriend, Montgomery, advanced to the semifinals of the men's 100 by finishing fourth in his quarterfinal heat with a time of 10.16 seconds.

Montgomery has been charged with steroid use by USADA and faces a lifetime ban if found guilty.

Even if he makes the U.S. team, he still must await a ruling in his case by the Swiss-based Court of Arbitration for Sport. If the CAS rules against him, Montgomery would be barred from the Athens Games.

would be barred from the Athens Games.

The fastest time in the men's 100 quarterfinals was 10.00 by Shawn Crawford, followed by John Capel in 10.01. Fourth fastest was reigning Olympic champ Maurice

Greene (10.06) who is back in top form after two years of lackluster results. Greene used to hold the world record of 9.79 until Montgomery broke that by a hundredth of a second in 2002. If Montgomery is found guilty of doping, he likely will forfeit the world record and it will revert to Greene.

Olympic silver medalist Adam Nelson won the shot put with a mark of 71 feet, and was joined on the U.S. squad by Reese Hoffa and John Godina. Godina will be competing in his third Olympics — he won silver in 1996 and bronze in 2000.

Christian Cantwell, who has the four longest throws in the world this season, finished fourth and failed to qualify for the Olympics. He fouled on five of his six atternsts.

Shelia Burrell won the heptathlon. Joining her on the U.S. team for the Athens Games will be Tiffany Lott-Hogan, who finished second Saturday, and Michelle Perry.

Chryste Gaines, who along with Montgomery is among the four sprinters charged with steroid use by USADA, finished fifth in her 100 semifinal and did not qualify for the final.

Phelps wins third event in trials, gets swimming baton from Spitz

BY PAUL NEWBERRY The Associated Press

LONG BEACH, Calif. — Mark Spitz draped the medal around Michael Phelps' neck and pulled the teenager close, whispering in his ear.

Then Spitz hopped atop the podium, held Phelps' right hand in the air and pointed at him as if to say, "He's the man now." The swimming baton was passed Saturday.

Michael Phelps made it three in a row at the U.S. Olympic swimming trials, dominating the 200-meter butterfly to stay on course in his bid to break Spitz's record of seven gold medals.

In a symbolic moment, the two met for the first time during the award ceremony. It seemed as if Spitz was giving his blessing for the 19-year-old to take down one of sport's most revered records when he gets to Athens next month.

"I think he really has a chance to do this," said Spitz, who won his seven golds at the 1972 Munich Games. "That's one of the things I told him."

The only disappointment for Phelps: He came up just short of his own world record in the 200 fly, going out a little too fast and fading to a time of 1 minute, 54.31 seconds. The mark that still stands, 1:53.93, was set at last year's world championships. It was Phelps' third individual win of the trials, following a world-record performance in the 400 individual medley and Friday's victory in the 200 freestyle. He has three more individual events to swim at the trials, facing his busiest schedule yet on Sunday and Monday. If all goes well, he will swim eight races over those two days.

"I'm feeling pretty good right now," he said.

Phelps also has earned a spot on the 800 freestyle relay team and hopes to swim the other two relays, as well, giving him as many as nine chances to eclipse Spitz. And now — finally — the two have met.

"Wow!" Phelps said. "That's probably one of the most exciting moments I've had in sports."

Former world record-holder Tom Malchow won the 200 fly at the Sydney Games, while Phelps finished fifth at age 15. The tide turned over the past four years, with Phelps maturing into the world's most dominant swimmer.

Malchow also is likely to make the team after finishing second to Phelps, though he's fallen far behind the teenager. The defending Olympic gold medalist was more than three seconds behind at "Something's not right," the 27-year-old Malchow said. "I don't know if it's physical or mental. I'm getting a little older, and I really felt it this weekend."

In the womens's 200 freestyle, 16-year-old Dana Vollmer upset American record-holder Lindsay Benko in the final. Benko scratched from the 400 free to focus on the shorter event, but Vollmer caught her at the finish to win with a time of 1:59.20. Benko held on for second at 1:59.29, while Kaitlin Sandeno and Rhi Jeffrey also earned relay spots by finishing third and fourth. Vollmer has a rare ailment that could cause her heart to stop at any time. She keeps a defibrillator nearby while competing, but refuses to give up the sport she loves.

In the other final Saturday, 15-year-old Katie Hoff knocked off three-time Olympian Amanda Beard in the 200 individual medley with a time of 2:12.06. Hoff is a member of the same swim club as Phelps, North Baltimore. Beard took second and a likely Olympic spot at 2:12.43. Both already had made the team by winning other events — Beard the 100 breaststroke. Hoff the 400 IM.

In the men's 100 freestyle, tensions between eight-time Olympic medalist Gary Hall Jr. and Jason Lezak bubbled over again after they met for the first time.

Lezak, who earned his lone gold by swimming a relay prelim at Sydney, bristled at comments by Hall's agent, David Arluck, who compared any talk of a rivalry to "Spud Webb kicking Michael Jordan in the shins."

"Spud Webb was never the fastest sprinter in the world, which I was in 2002," Lezak said. "I don't know what those guys are thinking about."

At the spring nationals, Hall accused Lezak of spitting in his lane before a race, calling it a weak attempt to psych out his opponent.

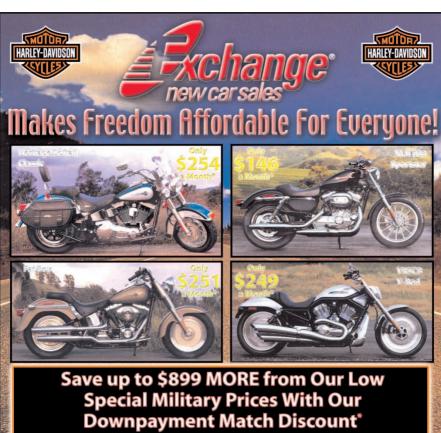

Former Olympian Mark Spitz raises the hand of Michael Phelps after Phelps won the 200 meter butterfly at the U.S. Olympic swim trials.

But Lezak has never acknowledged the spitting, saying it's hard to consider Hall an adversary when he spends much of his time away from the pool in non-Olympic years.

"Honestly, he hasn't even been around here for four years," Lezak said. "He just shows up for the Olympics." Lezak sent a message in the semifinals, setting an American record of 48.17. Hall put up the third best time, 49.30, sending them both to Sunday's final.

"I'm one step closer to making the team," Hall said. "It's just a race now."

Shaq's agent says star OKs trade

Heat would send Lakers three starters, No. 1 pick

The Associated Press

ORLANDO, Fla. - Shaquille O'Neal would be happy to be traded to the Miami Heat.

That word came Saturday from O'Neal's agent, Perry Rogers, who told the South Florida Sun-Sentinel that O'Neal has given his blessing to a deal that would send him

"We've said that we would agree to a trade." Rogers said in a story posted Saturday night on the newspaper's Web site. "I think that's going to happen. I'd be very surprised if it didn't happen."

Saturday night that the Lakers have in agreed in principle to trade O'Neal to the Heat for Lamar Odom, Caron Butler, Brian Grant and a first-round pick. The newspaper said the Lakers declined to comment on the trade.

A deal cannot be completed until Wednesday when a two-week leaguewide moratorium on trades and free agent signings expires.

"It's very serious. I think it's very close to getting done," said Grant's agent, Mark

Greeted by reporters as he was leaving a gym near his Orlando mansion, O'Neal The Los Angeles Times, citing team and said he had not yet met with Heat President Pat Riley and declined to comment on a possible trade.

"I can't say anything about that today," said O'Neal, flashing a big smile.

But ESPN, the Sun-Sentinel and the Times reported that O'Neal joined his representatives for a three-hour meeting that included Riley and Heat General Manager Randy Pfund.

O'Neal's contract runs for two more seasons with a combined salary of almost $59 million, and he was angered earlier this season when the Lakers refused to offer him an extension.

Rogers said the Heat had not discussed a new contract with O'Neal.
